About Her in Hertz

Hertz has a long history of putting women at the forefront in its 100-year history—from the ads featuring strong, professional women in the 1940s and 50s to the executives leading the company today. Female business travelers are an important consumer for Hertz, and the company plans to continue finding ways to celebrate them through marketing and customer service efforts in the future. Hertz also has a precious gift in the first three letters of its brand name: "her." Ironically, few car rental companies cater to women business travelers. Women actually account for about 40 percent of Hertz's Gold Plus Rewards membership in the U.S. and 30 percent worldwide. And, while Hertz will also focus on the "him," it's planning to shine an even brighter light on the "her" in Hertz this year, further strengthening the company's relationship with women business travelers.
